CHLOE WIGG

Ambassador for the 2026 Brisbane Disability Expo

Chloe will appear as the event ambassador at the Brisbane Disability Expo's opening ceremony on Friday, October 30th at 11 am.

For award-winning artist, public speaker and advocate Chloe Wigg, creativity has always been about connection. Before becoming known for her vibrant and immersive artworks, Chloe worked as a paramedic. After being injured on the job, Chloe found herself spending long periods in hospitals, adjusting to a life she had never expected. As her world changed, art became an anchor.

She says, "With the art therapy that I did and just the ability to put all of my attention and focus into something colourful and beautiful, that just helped me cope with trying to get to know this new body that I inherited, and learn to love it and thank it for everything that it survived."

When Chloe started experiencing myasthenia gravis, she lost the drive to continue her art practice. Through meeting people also living with MG and the wider disabled community, she eventually stepped back into art, not just as a form of self-expression, but as a way to help people through their hardships – the way she learned to as a paramedic.

Today, Chloe creates expressive fluid impressionist paintings built from layers of poured acrylic paint, while also using art as a vehicle for advocacy, inclusion and community connection.

As Ambassador, Chloe looks forward to meeting attendees, hearing their stories, and championing their capabilities.

"It's important for people to realise how capable they are. You can't be what you can't see, and having people and opportunities that inspire others and show them what they really can achieve is so important."

Come experience this through her new project Adapted, which investigates what is gained in function – and lost in identity. A key part of the project is DecorATe, which invites people to decorate their AT or an everyday item, and which attendees can try at her booth.

"No one should ever have to feel like they have to justify or prove their disability. And no one should feel excluded just because they might be able-bodied. So I want everyone to feel accepted and welcome. Anyone is welcome at the DecorATe booth at the Expo."

Find Chloe at Booth S2 for DecorATe and catch her interview on stage on Friday, 11am.
